

Chaitanya Dang (IN)

With an end-to-end conceptualized project, Chaitanya is in the early stages of establishing his architecture and development practice in India. His vision is to deliver well-designed, thoughtfully planned-properties and spaces in urban areas. His recent endeavors have been about managing his father's business of manufacturing and supplying goods and services to the government while orchestrating a smooth transition into architecture and development. Throughout this campaign, Chaitanya has participated in various workshops that explore his interests in architectural lighting and the design of the public realm. Having successfully transitioned to his new endeavor, he now seeks to gain further exposure and experience to deepen his understanding of society and management.